(3) According to available information, a portion of the landing field at Litten airfield is still serviceable. From this it is inferred that the reconstruction of the airfield for basic pilot training could be carried out within a short time. The construction of a runway is probably not intended in the near future because it is not necessary for basic pilot training. However, the reported extension of the landing field is believed to be correct.

(h) Thether the former Fautzen-Stiebitz airfield will be put in operation will depend on the number of German pilots who are to be trained in Mastern Germany.
